

ABSTRACT

An inspection apparatus incorporates at least a stethoscope inspection mode and an ultrasonic wave inspection mode. A signal processing module converts the analog signals received by a conversion module into digital signals, and stores the digital signals in a storage unit. A communicate module transmits the digital signals to a data processing device comprising wireless communicating interface, and thus a user of the data processing device obtains the inspection results displayed on a display unit of the data processing device.

5